More objects with destinations is an extended version of the music that I wrote for the video "Objects with destinations" by Gary Hill. The latter was a commission for the 50-year anniversary of the Museum of Modern Art in Stockholm and was premiered in October 2008. The overall idea in the video is how simple everyday objects such as hammers, scrapers and tongs are manipulated visually and moving in different directions to end up superimposing one another. In a similar way the music is built around three musical objects that are moving at different speed (33, 45 and 78 rpm as on a record player) and sometimes are "climbing" on top of each other.
